Baja Gets A Makeover

Baja Diamante's Crystal Beach Villas mix contemporary architecture with a sense of refinement – Homebuyers will make a bold statement

San Diego, CA (March 16, 2007) – Why buy a home in exotic Mexico that looks like something you would purchase in your own neighborhood? With an abundance of new developments popping up along the Baja Peninsula, Crystal Beach Villas offer homebuyers something unique.

Crystal Beach Villas, an exclusive-gated community located in Baja Diamante Development features contemporary homes with an authentic Mexican flare. Created by Armando Ramos Architects, the Crystal Beach Villas are custom-designed as an expression of the homeowners pioneering spirit. Artfully designed, they make a cultural statement by blending modern architecture with native craftsmanship.

Ramos draws upon poetry, music and metaphors to create his designs. The originality of his homes reflects the desire to create more than just a space to live but a space to contemplate and be inspired. Mystery, solitude and reflection are all elements created within the Crystal Beach Villas.

The exterior of the homes have an immediate impact. They invite you inside only to offer a constant sense of discovery. "I design a home like I see a woman", states Ramos. When you meet a woman you don't want to know everything about her all at once. I design my homes with a sense of mystery. When you walk in the front door, you won't see the kitchen, living room, dining room and bathroom all at once".

Crystal Beach Villas feature indoor / outdoor living meant to embrace the environment as part of the home. Disappearing walls of glass that slide open into a private patio; large windows designed to look like paintings on the walls, and rooftop terraces with reflecting pools, all give the homeowners unobstructed views of the Sea of Cortez, the San Pedro Martir mountains and the Nicklaus Design golf course. Detailed with travertine marble floors, granite counter tops and architectural lighting, Crystal Beach Villa homeowners will have high-end amenities to suit their exquisite home.

For prospective buyers with the courage and drive to experience something new, the Crystal Beach Villas will offer an enlightened culture. As Armando Ramos blends Mexican architecture with a contemporary sense of refinement and luxury, there is no place better to experience a new lifestyle.

Crystal Beach Villa home prices range from $255,000-$515,000 and offer three custom-designed homes all with views of the sea, mountains and ocean.
